

Two Pianists Give Concerts; 'Rigoletto' Sung

Two pianists occupied the concert stage yesterday. Lucille Oliver in the afternoon and Leon Sampaix in the evening. Miss Oliver, for her debut, selected two Bach preludes and fugues, Chopin's ballade in F minor, Debussy and shorter numbers of Beethoven, MacDowell and Liszt. For a beginner Miss Oliver did all expected. Mr. Sampaix's efforts, though nothing exceptional, nor out of the ordinary, were the object of much applause from his friends in the audience.

'Rigoletto' was the Metropolitan Opera's offering in the evening. Corn Chase, American soprano, Charles Hackett, American tenor, were Gilda and The Duke. Mr. De Luca the Rigoletto, with Mr. Mardones and Flora Perini filling out the famous quartet. The audience was of respectable size.

This afternoon there will be a special matinee of 'La Boheme,' and the Metropolitan assures its patrons that Benjamin Gigli, who has been suffering with a cold for the past week, has recovered and will appear as Rodolfo in company with Miss Bori.

Victor Hugo Shot in Raid on Jersey City Saloon.

Victor Hugo, a special agent, and several detectives of the County Prosecutor's office went into the saloon at No. 321 Barrow Street, Jersey City, early to-day and said they had a search warrant. Martin Galvin Jr., twenty-two, son of the proprietor, is alleged to have drawn a revolver and ordered the detectives to keep from behind the bar. Hugo grappled with him and the revolver went off, shooting Hugo through the left hand. Galvin was arrested.
